Compared to sprint-2, our burndown chart looks much better as we see a decrease in story points, especially towards the end of the sprint. You can see some gradual bumps during the earlier days of this sprint, which represent us splitting some tickets into 1 front-end and 1 back-end ticket. We found that the amount of tickets we took on this sprint was a more manageable load and allowed us to improve our sprint velocity. For future sprints, we look to complete tickets more earlier in the sprint instead of a steep dropoff in story points during the last couple of days.
